IQS School of Management | Universitat Ramon Llull

Barcelona, Spain

Research Assistant

09/2020–present

- Researched Chinese labor migration and child development for the Horizon 2020 CHINEQUALJUSTICE project.
  - ◇ Created a unique quasi-panel, synthesized virtues of prospect theory and dynamic discrete choice models, drew empirical specifications with theoretical micro-foundations, examined the effects of sector-based job prospects on individual migration decisions across approx. 280 Chinese cities and applied fixed effects, multilevel logistic regression and two-step system GMM.

◇ Assembled a panel, constructed novel indicators on the basis of the Human Development Index and Capability Approach and assessed the academic development of Chinese children and adolescents with fixed effects, linear mixed-effect and sharp RD estimators.

- Authored two articles with Dr. Octasiano M. Valerio Mendoza and Dr. Flavio Comim.
- Collaborated three research projects (in progress) with Dr. Simiao Chen, Dr. Mihály Tamás Borsi, and Dr. Jack W. Hou.

WORKING PAPERS

First Authored:

1. Job Prospects and Labour Mobility in China, with Dr. Octasiano M. Valerio Mendoza

– Job Market Paper

Short Abstract: Chinese research on migration decisions with a forward-looking stand and on bilateral longitudinal determinants at the prefecture city level is almost non-existent. This paper investigates the effects of sector-based job prospects on individual migration decisions across prefecture boundaries. We created a proxy variable for job prospects, compiled a unique quasi-panel of 66,427 individuals from 283 cities during 1997–2017, introduced reference-dependence to the random utility maximisation model of migration in a sequential setting, derived empirical specifications with theoretical micro-foundations, and applied various monadic and dyadic fixed effects to address multilateral resistance to migration. Multilevel logit models and two-step system GMM estimation were adopted for the robustness check. Our primary findings are that a 10% increase in the ratio of sector-based job prospects at destination to at origin raises migratory probabilities by 1.281–2.185 percentage points, and the effects tend to be stronger when the scale of the ratio is larger. Our results suggest that the ongoing industrial reform in China influences labour mobility between cities.

2. Valuing Children in China: Parents' Perceptions, Spending Priorities and Children's Capabilities, with Dr. Flavio Comim and Dr. Octasiano M. Valerio Mendoza

– Under review in World Development

Short Abstract: This paper provides a composite analysis of children's academic development based on comprehensive outcomes and introduces a series of innovative indicators rooted in the capability approach. Significantly, it presents an index of parents' advantages to capture how parents influence their children and establishes a new indicator of spending priorities to reify the value of children's education that families have reasoned. The study sample consists of 8,422 children and adolescents surveyed during 2012 to 2018. Our results primarily show that a 1% increase in the parent advantage index yields an increase of 13.85% to 21.31% in children's academic development, and the biggest leap in prioritizing education-relevant spending increases the child outcomes by 2.88% to 6.57%. Further, if the interplay of parent's higher educational attainment and spending priorities is taken into account, children's academic development could reach a maximum difference of 21.96%. We conclude that parents can influence the development of their children through their beings and doings and, particularly, the value they place on their children's education, that go beyond a limited focus on material dimensions.
